Introduction

A campaign set in the victorian era, centered around Wetherington Park, a remote old estate in central Lincolnshire.

The Beginning This campaign starts in the autumn of 1893. The investigators are called in to help solve a brutal murder in a Lincolnshire village, which leads them further in to the dark world of The Mythos.

The Lindow Murder A murder most foul has occurred in Lindow, and the investigators are called for help by an old friend, Milton Comley, who is now the local curate.

Part I

The Lindow Murder

A letter arrives from an old friend, Milton Comley, who asks for help. There has been a murder in the village he is currently working in, and he fears it is too much for both him and the local constable.

Mr Comley is currently employed as a curate in Lindow, a small village in Lincolnshire. He has been employed there for the last three years and considered it to be the ideal work for him. That is, until the murder took place.

Going by train to Boston they are met by an old man driving a stage coach. He takes them through the countryside to the village Lindow, some miles to the north of the town and the journey ends at the Vicarage, next to the small anglo-saxon church.

The murder will soon be followed by one or more, depending on how quickly the investigators solves the mystery.

Chapter 1

At the Vickarage

A letter arrives from an old friend, Milton Comley, who asks for help. There has been a murder in the village he is currently working in, and he fears it is too much for both him and the local constable.
